Tarrant County Assistant District Attorney appointed to 297th Judicial District Court

(Fort Worth, TX) – Governor Greg Abbott appointed Assistant District Attorney Amy Allin on Tuesday to the 297th Judicial District Court in Tarrant County.

Allin, currently a felony court chief, began working in this office eight years ago and has prosecuted hundreds of cases.

"The governor made an outstanding choice in selecting Amy," DA Phil Sorrells said. "I am incredibly proud of her and confident in her ability to be an exceptional judge. Amy brings a wealth of knowledge, experience, and unwavering dedication – qualities that will serve her well on the bench."

"While her contributions will certainly be missed in my office, I have no doubt that her commitment to justice will make a lasting impact in the courtroom."

Allin will replace former Judge David Hagerman, who retired from the position earlier this year.

"I am deeply honored and grateful to Governor Abbott for entrusting me with this incredible opportunity," Allin said. "It is truly humbling to be given the chance to serve the citizens of Tarrant County in this new role, and I am committed to upholding the trust placed in me."

Allin earned a Bachelor of Science in Advertising from the University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign and a Juris Doctor from Catholic University of America Columbus School of Law.

This appointment requires Texas Senate confirmation. The State Legislature remains in session until June 2, 2025.

Allin's term will expire December 31, 2026.
